Not illustrated. 1915 Excerpt: .the water becomes so salty ihat it is not fit to drink. In some places they make salt and soda from the water of such lakes. Lakes are very pretty and many people camp by them in the summer. They are also useful, because they store the water of the winter storms which would otherwise run away to the ocean. QUESTIONS. Tell what a pond is. Have you ever seen a lake? If so, describe it. Have you seen a land-slide after a heavy rain? Tell what happened. Why did the river leave its load in the lake? Of what value are lakes? Why is the water salty in some lakes? What is a meadow? How does the ocean differ from a lake? What is a delta? Is the land formed by deposit from a river ncn or poor? We have learned that soil is made from rock. Now we ought to learn something about rocks themselves. Rocks are very useful in many ways. It is in the rocks that we find gold and other minerals. We have seen rocks in many places. In the hills and mountains they are sticking out of the ground. Along the ocean shore and in the caHons the waters have washed the soil away and left them bare. Do you know what a quarry is? It is a place where rock is obtained for buildings. The rock which we find on the top of the ground is dirty and often...
