Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Euphoria broke out in the hitching alley by the time my father reached Main Street s boardwalk. Farmer s wives had their husbands by their short hairs and they painfully parted from their squirreled away crop money from a year ago. It had been a long time since the country folks had a fair day to shop. My father watched over us while he sought out a familiar face and recognized Jeffrey Bill Jones, his best friend from childhood. Jones company was like a warm fire on a cold day or a cool breeze on a hot muggy summer day. His presence was never rainy or stormy. Lamar counted him as his best friend. He found Jones, a tall bearded colored man, wearing overalls and a red checkered shirt with a gray dog eared infantryman s cap pulled down to his ears leaning against the brick faced front of Meaders Drug right behind the spot he decided to sit down. My father attempted to surprise his friend but he spotted him first and Jones strolled over to greet him with a question. Expecting trouble Lamar? referring to his shotgun. No I ain t Bill, but if you re gonna be trouble I ll give you some of what I got this shotgun for! and the fun begin. Each tried to out lie the other with neither getting the edge. They talked about good times, bad times, and current times. The newest thing for Jones would be the prophecy made by Wingfoot. When dad told him that story they both laughed until tears filled their eyes. Little did Lamar know that bit of information would come back to haunt...
