Not illustrated. 1919 Excerpt: .approximate the shape of a funnel with the smallest diameter where the head is the highest. In other cases it is found economical to make the upper part--the part under the low head--consist of concrete or staves and the remainder of steel. The determination of the economical pipe now reduces to the determination of the diameters of the several sections and the problem may not be an easy one. The method of procedure suggested for the case of a pipe of constant diameter throughout, is no longer applicable. While considerable latitude is left to the designer it is nevertheless important to be able to determine what the theoretically economical diameters of the several sections are. In 1907, A. L. Adams proposed a principle for the design of a penstock that seemed to him self-evident. This principle may be stated as follows: That pipe is most economically...
